Item 8.01. Other Events

Today, November 19, 2009, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) announced that it had approved an order (RP10-148-000) instituting a section 5 proceeding in respect to Great Lakes Gas Transmission Limited Partnership (Great Lakes) to determine whether the rates charged by Great Lakes are just and reasonable.

The FERC instituted this proceeding after reviewing Great Lakes's 2008 Form 2 filed in April 2009. The FERC is also instituting proceedings against two other pipeline companies, Northern Natural Gas Company and Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America LLC.

The FERC directed that an initial decision be issued within 47 weeks of the designation of a presiding judge, consistent with the Administrative Law Judge's track II time frame for hearings. The FERC also indicated that the expedited schedule is not intended to foreclose any of the pipelines, its customers and FERC staff from reaching a reasonable settlement.

We are currently analyzing the matter and cannot predict the impact to Great Lakes at this time.

TC PipeLines, LP (the "Partnership") owns a 46.45 per cent general partner interest in Great Lakes Gas Transmission Limited Partnership ("Great Lakes"). The other 53.55 per cent partner interest in Great Lakes is owned by subsidiaries of TransCanada Corporation.
